The Telephone Company Expanding

For times past there has been a need of a public telephone in the city and the company have been looking for a plausible place to station it. Quite fortunately for the people of Globe, Barrett's drug store had the available space and the right disposition. So there's a quiet corner in there for you when you wish to talk to your friends. Make the place your headquarters, next door to the Iris theater.

Yours in the drug business.

"Pearl of Savoy" at Dreamland

An increased attendance was present at the third night of the McDonald stock company at Dreamland. The attraction was "The Pearl of Savoy," a play second only to "Fanchon the Cricket" in the repertoire of America's historical soubrette, Maggie Mitchell.

The title role of this hauntingly pathetic French pastoral fell last night to Miss Hazelle McDonald. It was in good hands, for she did wonderfully well with it. In fact, it is quite the best thing she has done so far. An emotional role, it is customarily well-rasped by its ten-twenty-thirty aspirants.

Harry C. Wilson had the part of Commander and G. W. McDonald was a quaint Pierrot. Tonight "The Danites."

SURPRISING STRIKE AT GLOBE-ARIZONA

The Globe-Arizona Mining company, which recently took over the Rogers, Starr and Rolling property adjoining the Superior & Boston and Old Dominion, is making better headway than the purchasers of the property anticipated, and mining men who have recently visited the property believe that the company has one of the best showings for quick results in the district. While cleaning out the old shaft, which had caved in, miners discovered an old crosscut about fifty feet from the surface. It had been covered by shaft timbers several years ago and these timbers, which had rotted, were being replaced when the discovery was made. The crosscut is only twenty feet long but it cuts a vein of high grade ore, about four feet wide.

The discovery of the old working was a cause of considerable comment among old mining men who are acquainted with that section. No one seemed to have known of it, even those who sold the property being unaware of the crosscut. It was later recalled that Tom Reinhart, who committed suicide several years ago, had formerly worked the mine for silver and had taken a considerable quantity of ore from the small crosscut. The ore ran into copper, but the extremely low price then of the red metal made its mining there prohibitive and the mine was abandoned.

It is evident that the entire vicinity is heavily mineralized. A few days ago ore in good quantity was discovered in blasting into the footwall twenty feet from the surface, to install new timbers. The mine is expected to start shipping soon after the arrival of the steam hoisting plant, which has been ordered.

Godfather of O. D.

N. S. Berray of Globe was a Phoenix visitor yesterday, having come to the valley on business in connection with his ranch property near Mesa, says the Phoenix Republican. Mr. Berray is one of the best known and competent mining men in Arizona. He is the Globe superintendent for the Phelps Dodge interests, having under his direction the Old Dominion mine, the United Globe and other associated properties. Mr. Berray was superintendent of the Old Dominion many years ago and previous to that time was in an important subordinate position, as he has really been more closely connected with that property than any other man living and has practically helped it grow from a little prospect to one of the big producers of the country. Though he severed his connection with the management for a few years while he exploited other workings in which he was concerned he never lost interest in the O. D. and might properly be called its godfather.

The Iris Opening

The Iris theater, Globe's newest place of amusement, will be opened Saturday evening and the opening promises to be an enjoyable one to theatergoers. Rice, Marks & Tupper, the owners of the theater, will spare no expense in making the house a favorite place of amusement. They have ordered regulation opera chairs, but as they will not be here in time for the opening night, a sufficient number have been loaned by the Dreamland management. It is not generally known that the head of the theatrical firm is Jack Rice, the well known salesman of explosives, who makes Globe regularly. Pictures only of Jack's line, however, will be allowed in the theater.

American Women and Bosses

Punch publishes a letter "from the other side," in which the writer, who signs the name "Blanche," discusses certain American things, ostensibly the British viewpoint.

"This country," writes Blanche, "is sometimes called the paradise of women, and the name is all right if putting us always in front and giving us everything almost before we ask for it makes our paradise. But it doesn't, in our hearts. All we women like to find our master, and we never like a man so well as when he looks terrible and shouts: 'I forbid you to do so and so.' It is such fun then to go and do it, and that's a joy the American wife doesn't know. The female Columbian, with all her vaunted perfections, would be a nicer and even a happier woman for an occasional spouting. She needs it, and will never get it at home. That, in my opinion, leads her to marrying abroad too often.

"The American woman dresses well, but she has no national originality that way. When she's tailor built, she's Bond street; when fluffy and frilly, she is Rue de la Paix, and a translation never has the verve and force of the original. When Miss Columbia is pretty she's all right with the exception of her voice, but she isn't pretty any oftener than the girls of other countries, and it's all their brag to say she is. And, pretty or plain, there's an air about her of 'I am the correct thing in girlhood' that makes the European smile.

"I consider the men here to be both better looking and nicer than the women."—London cable to the New York Times.
